The EU-China Relationship : European Perspectives: A Manual for Policy Makers By Kerry Brown

This book brings together 30 papers commissioned from 2011 to 2013 by the EU-funded Europe–China Research and Advice Network (ECRAN). These papers, thematically grouped in sections on economics, society and politics, were written by some of the world's leading China experts in Europe, and give a European perspective of this complex relationship. The papers provide a broad overview of how Europeans see the key challenges currently faced by China and Europe as well as a unique insight into the related policy aspects of the vexed and complex relationship of the two largest trading partners in the world.

The EU–China Relationship: European Perspectives is written in a highly pragmatic manner, focusing on specific political, economic and social issues that impact on international relations. It is an essential EU toolkit and policy handbook for academics and policy makers in government and business who are engaging with China, not just in the EU but across the world.

Readership: Academics, policy makers, business and government agencies interested in International and Bilateral relations concerning China and Europe.

Editorial Review

From the Inside Flap

This book brings together 30 papers commissioned by the EU-funded Europe China Research and Advice Network (ECRAN) over the last two and a half years. These papers were written by some of the world's leading China experts in Europe, and give a European perspective of this relationship. The introduction gives an overview of the dynamics and challenges to the EU-China relationship. The book has linking commentary between the pieces, which are thematically grouped in economics, social and political chapters, with a conclusion looking at the path EU-China relations might take in the coming decade under China's new leadership. The papers provide a broad overview of how Europeans see the key challenges currently faced by China and Europe, the largest trading partners in the world but ones with a vexed and complex relationship, as well as a unique insight into the related policy aspects of their relationship and how these can be best developed.

The EU-China Relationship: European Perspectives is an EU toolkit and policy handbook for parties who are now engaging with China, not just in the EU but across the world, and is written in a highly pragmatic manner, focusing on specific political, economic and social issues that impact on international relations. The book would be of interest to an academic, policy and business audience.
