Choice of Venue in International Arbitration By Michael Ostrove, Claudia Salomon, Bette Shifman

The relative merits of different arbitral venues are conveyed accessibly and practically in this far-reaching survey, with contributions from prestigious practitioners from every major global seat. The book offers comparative analysis of the relative challenges arising at venues around the world. A reliable tool during the negotiation and drafting stages, it enables a newly tactical consideration of venue, whilst providing instant answers to those in unfamiliar jurisdictions. Offering detailed analysis of a range of key venues, it addresses not only the practical reality but also the history and development in these seats, making the book both an academic and a practical investment.

Editorial Review

Review

A formidable volume on the considerations to take into account when selecting the seat of an arbitration, ranging from the practical (including physical access and the convenience of the parties) to the legalistic (such as supervision by seat courts and enforceability). International Council for Commercial Arbitration (ICCA) A comprehensive and most valuable tool in the literary armoury of all lawyers needing to consider choice of seat or venue of international arbitration. Hilary Heilbron QC, Brick Court Chambers An excellent and timely treatment of issues with great practical import; required reading for all international practitioners. Gary Born, Chair, International Arbitration Practice Group Heading a team of over thirty international contributors, mostly from top law firms and leading academic institutions worldwide, the editors have created a splendid guide to this complex and certainly wide-ranging subject. And, with its copious footnoting, extensive index and a section of almost 30 pages of tables of cases and of legislation, the book is also a formidable research resource. ... If you are a practitioner or arbitrator, or involved in any way with dispute resolution, this is a volume you should definitely add to your professional library. Phillip Taylor MBE
